

A Guide to Lee County Government

Lee County web site: www.leeco.us

What is County Government? That's a very good, simple question. The answer, however, is not so simple and often leads to many more questions.

Understanding county governments can often be a difficult proposition because of their confusing composition.

We hope the following information will at least clear up some of the confusion surrounding county government in Lee County or at least get you pointed in the right direction.

Evolution of County Government

When counties were first created they were intended to be the administrative arm of the state – a way for the state to conduct its business on the local level.

Counties, and by extension County Commissions, are an integral part of American government and have been since before our nation's founding. In fact, the first county was actually formed in Virginia in 1634 and featured many of the positions we still see today.

The earliest county governments in the nation were modeled after England's "shire" system where local representatives of the king included the justice of the peace, sheriff, coroner and constable.

That system remained in place for a number of years with only slight regional variations. As the country continued to grow, citizens wanted more of a voice so many states drafted constitutions requiring elections for several county officers including county commissioners, justices of the peace, sheriffs, clerks and coroners.

Unfortunately, a significant drawback to having numerous elected officials with varying authority and responsibilities is that it can make knowing who to talk to confusing.

Counties vs. Cities

Since counties were created by and are considered agents of the state, the State Legislature put limits on what counties could actually do. Many of those limits are still in place today and counties have to petition the Legislature for additional powers and authority to conduct county business.

Unlike counties, cities are formed voluntarily by groups of citizens. Since they are formed voluntarily, they have more leeway than counties and are able to establish their own rules and regulations unless legislatively prohibited. This leeway underlines one of the main differences between the two entities – Home Rule.

Essentially, Home Rule is the broad authority granted to local government by their State Legislature in regard to regulating various services needed to operate independently and address local issues.

Many states across the country have recognized the need to grant counties wide discretionary authority to address local issues and needs. A few, like Alabama, have not followed this trend and refrain from granting much authority to counties.

In Alabama, cities have broad authority to address local issues unless prohibited by state law, unlike counties which can only perform those functions specifically authorized by state law.

Over the years, however, the Alabama Legislature has granted limited and specifically defined powers which can vary greatly from county to county through local laws and Constitutional Amendments. This county-by-county, case-by-case authorization adds to some of the confusion many citizens experience when dealing with different counties in Alabama.

County government structure

In Alabama, the basic structure of county government is the county commission. That structure was established not long after Alabama became a state in 1819. Originally, each County Commission was elected county-wide and consisted of four part-time Commissioners and the Probate Judge, who served as Chairman of the County Commission.

Over time, that structure evolved with commissioners being elected by district as opposed to county-wide to better represent the citizens. In 1986, Lee County entered into a consent decree in a federal class-action discrimination lawsuit entitled Dillard v. Crenshaw County, agreeing to add a fifth Commissioner to represent a “majority-minority” district.

Today there are three different primary types of county commission leadership: Probate Judge as chairman, a separate county-wide elected chairman and a chairmanship rotated periodically among all commissioners. In Lee County the structure remains the Probate Judge elected county-wide who also serves as chairman of the Commission with five part-time Commissioners elected by district. However, in May 2009 Act 2009-381 was passed by the Alabama State Legislature authorizing a referendum vote by the citizens to decide if the current chairmanship structure should change. The referendum vote on the chairmanship position will be held in November 2010.

Who are our Commissioners?

Sometimes we get requests as to who various officials departments and/or officials report to, including County Commissioners. In each section we will identify to whom each department and/or official reports. For example: Each County Commissioner reports to the citizens of their respective district.

The County is divided into 5 districts with a commissioner elected from within each district. The only county-wide elected position on the Commission remains the Probate Judge who serves as chair. Commissioners serve four-year terms and are elected on a staggered basis to allow for continuity; the only exception to this is the Probate Judge who serves a six-year term.

The current members of the County Commission and their term end dates are:

Chairman	Probate Judge Bill English	Jan. 2013
District 1	J. Mathan Holt	Nov. 2012
District 2	Johnny Lawrence	Nov. 2014
District 3	Gary Long	Nov. 2012
District 4	Robert Ham	Nov. 2014
District 5	John Andrew Harris	Nov. 2014

County Responsibilities

Counties are a political subdivision of the state and perform several governmental functions. They are considered quasi-public corporations and have a variety of responsibilities.

While the maintenance and construction of roads and bridges in the unincorporated areas is considered one of the county's primary responsibilities, it is by far not the only one.

The county's other basic responsibilities are:

- Adopting a budget for County Commission operations as well as budgets for other county elected officials
- Preparation of county assessments and plats
- Facilities management and construction
- Administrative support for the County Commission and other local county elected officials' offices

Over the years, however, the role of the county has evolved and counties and County Commissions have taken on new responsibilities. Some of which include:

- Solid Waste and Animal Control
- Emergency Management
- Emergency Medical Transportation
- Regulating Junkyards and other public nuisances
- Building Inspection
- Recreation
- Assist with airport improvement

My road is terrible. Who do I talk to?

If you are dissatisfied with the condition of your paved or dirt county road and would like it resurfaced or repaired, you should contact the Highway Department at 334-745-9792 to make them aware of the situation.

I want my dirt road paved. What do I need to do?

Because of funding constraints, the county is limited to paving only 10 miles of dirt roads each year. Each County Commissioner is allotted a certain number of miles based on the percentage of dirt roads located within their district. The Commissioners then decide which roads to place on the annual Dirt Road Paving List which is approved by the entire Commission.

If you would like to see about having your dirt road placed on the list, contact the County Commissioner for your district. With 193 miles of dirt roads located in the county, please be aware that it may take several years for your road to be added.

Is my road maintained by the County?

Some roads located in unincorporated Lee County are not maintained by the Lee County Highway Department.

Roads designated by a blue road number sign are maintained by the County and those with a green road number sign are NOT maintained by the County. If you have any questions contact the Highway Department at 334-745-9792.

How can a citizen get involved in Lee County?

The Lee County Commission encourages its citizens to participate in Lee County government by becoming involved in the various boards and organizations supported by the County.

Interested citizens should visit www.leeco.us/appointments/index for a listing of board appointments made by the County Commission. For more information contact the Lee County Commission office at 334-737-3660.

I have to go to court. Where do I need to go?

All Circuit, District, Family and Juvenile Court hearings are held at the T.K. Davis Justice Center located at 2311 Gateway Drive in Opelika. Probate Court hearings are held at the Lee County Courthouse located at 215 S 9th Street in Opelika. On occasion, Probate Court hearings are also held at the East Alabama Medical Center or at East Alabama Mental Health Brief Intensive Treatment Facility.

For speeding citations obtained in either Auburn or Opelika, please contact the respective municipality. For citations given by either a Lee County Sheriff's Deputy or an Alabama State Trooper contact the Circuit Clerk at the T. K. Davis Justice Center at 334-749-7141.

If you have received a notice to attend Federal Court, those cases are heard at the George W. Andrews Federal Building located at 701 Avenue A, Opelika, AL 36801.

If you are a registered voter and would like to vote an absentee ballot, you need to contact the Absentee Voter office at 334-737-3621.

Is there planning and zoning in the county?

Currently the County Commission exerts no planning and zoning authority in the county other than subdivision and road regulations. In 2007, the State Legislature approved Act 2007-477 regarding land-use and zoning for the unincorporated portions of the county.

That issue will be addressed on a beat-by-beat basis. Before any zoning can be implemented in a voting district or "beat", a certain number of citizens/landowners must first submit a petition to the County Commission asking to hold a referendum. A referendum will then be held in that beat, and the Commission will only have that authority if a majority of those who vote support the idea.

What is the county doing about growth?

Lee County is one of the fastest growing counties in the state and will only continue to grow. To address the issues faced by that growth, the Lee County Commission has developed the Lee County Comprehensive Master Plan.

The Master Plan will serve as a blueprint for the county's future and will examine areas such as transportation, economic development, housing, infrastructure, open spaces and recreation and community facilities. To assist with the implementation of the Master Plan, the Commission has appointed a Planning Commission. The plan was approved by the Commission in March 2010 and is available at www.leeco.us/masterplan.

Where do I renew my car tags?

The Revenue Commissioner's Office is responsible for the issuance and distribution of car tags. The county's main Revenue Office is located in the County Courthouse in Opelika however there are also satellite offices located in Smiths Station and Auburn.

If you would like to avoid the long lines at the courthouse, car tags can also be renewed online by visiting www.leecountyrevenuecommissioner.com and clicking on the Motor Vehicles link located at the top of the page.

I need a new Driver's License. Where do I go?

To renew an existing or expired driver's license simply go to the Probate Office located at the County Courthouse in Opelika or the Auburn Satellite Office. If coming from another state, or if a driving or written test must be administered, you need to go to the Driver's License Examining Office located at the USA Factory Stores Outlet Mall, 1220 Fox Run Parkway, Suite A-4 in Opelika.

I need to get a boating license. Where do I go?

To obtain a boating license in the state of Alabama you have to be 12 years of age or older and you must have successfully passed the state's written examination for boating regulations.

The application, fee and test can be completed at the Department of Public Safety's Driver's License Examining Office located in the USA Factory Store Outlet Mall at 1220 Fox Run Avenue, Suite A-4, in Opelika.

In lieu of a written test, applicants can also complete the state's Boater Certification Course available on-line. The course completion certificate must be presented along with the application and fee at the Driver's License Examining Office. For more information see the state's Department of Conservation and Wildlife web site at www.outdooralabama.com.

Where do I go to look for a deed?

All property deeds are recorded through the Probate Office. Public access is available through public viewing stations located at the County Courthouse.

You may also order a copy of a recorded document through the mail or in person with a written request and appropriate fees paid. If the request is done via mail the recording information (book and page) as well as the recording date will need to be included to expedite the order. If requested in person, Probate staff can assist you in locating the documents by name.

Why are county roads numbered instead of named?

County roads are numbered instead of being named to more accurately identify the location during an emergency. Road names can be similar so using numbers cuts down on confusion ensuring a quicker response time. The house numbers assigned to the county road addresses are actually distance indicators and are designed to assist police, fire and EMS units in arriving as promptly as possible.

Where can I get a copy of the County Map?

Maps of the county can be purchased for a small fee in the Lee County Commission Office. E-911 maps are also available for purchase in the Commission Office. For more information please call 334-737-3660.

I disagree with my property value. What do I need to do?

If you are dissatisfied with the Fair Market Value assigned to your property, you can file a written protest with the Board of Equalization requesting an appointment with them. The protest must be postmarked within 30 days of the Notice of Valuation or the protest will not be heard until the following year.

Written protests can be sent to:

Lee County Board of Equalization
PO Box 3050
Opelika, AL 36803-3050.

Following receipt of the protest, you will be contacted by a county appraiser. If you are still not satisfied, then you will be notified of an appointment with the Board of Equalization. The Board usually meets each year in the spring or early summer.

If following your appointment with the Board of Equalization you are still dissatisfied, you can appeal to the Circuit Court within 30 days after receiving final notification from the Board. Please note that in order to carry the appeal to the Circuit Court, taxes must be paid by the December 31 deadline or a bond will be filed in Circuit Court of double the amount or taxes due.

Does the County Commission run the County School system?

No, the County Commission has no oversight of the Lee County School System. The seven members of the Lee County Board of Education are elected by district in the areas of Lee County outside Auburn and Opelika and they are responsible for operation of the county school system. The County Commission's only responsibility regarding the school system is to provide central office space as required by state law. For more information on the Lee County School System please visit www.lee.k12.al.us.

Who is my County Commissioner?

To find out who represents you on the County Commission, you can view the Commission District Map located on the county's web site at www.leeco.us under the County Commissioners link or you can contact the County Commission office at 334-737-3660.

How can I contact my County Commissioner?

Commission Meetings are held on the second and last Monday of each month at 6 p.m. CST unless otherwise noted and are open to the public. Since commissioners serve a part-time position, the contact information for each County Commissioner is:
